Hiring Team, Yuvora

At GenY Medium I rebuilt the Google Merchant Center and Meta catalog feeds for a D2C e-commerce brand and took it to 16x ROAS, no discount codes in the mix, just a cleaner feed and better bidding. Aashish's post asks for someone who has personally built the growth motion, not managed a team that did, for a premium brand that is not chasing markdowns. That is the exact shape of the work I keep doing, most recently as the founder who set up PriceKeel's entire GTM, CRM and pipeline from zero myself.

Retention is the other half of the brief, and I have run it from both sides. At Pixis I hired and managed an 8-person team across 8 D2C and marketplace client accounts and cut churn 50% through account strategy and vertical playbooks, not price cuts. At Sensata I raised distributor margins from 53% to 61% through premium, non-discount pricing realignment rather than concessions, which is the same instinct a no-markdown D2C brand needs applied to its own growth stack. Lifecycle and email are already part of how I run acquisition and retention together, and WhatsApp as a retention channel is a natural extension of that same playbook.

"Real ownership, for someone who wants to grow with the company" is what pulled me to write in. I am not interested in a team to manage between me and the outcome; I want the growth number itself. Running PriceKeel means I already carry that kind of ownership daily, from the first customer pilot to the pitch in front of investors, and I would bring the same directness to working next to a founder on growth and the strategic projects around it.

I also build my own reporting leverage: I automate recurring growth analysis with AI agents built on Claude, which matters more at a company building fast than at one with a dashboard team already in place.
