Hiring Team, PhoenixAI

Your posting asks for someone who can take an active, multi-channel paid program and make sure every dollar traces back to pipeline. At Plug Power I owned $100K/month across Google Ads, Meta and LinkedIn, then automated the Mar-Tech stack back to Salesforce so 50+ inbound campaigns reported against MQL quality and stage 1 pipeline instead of clicks and form fills. That is the closed-loop attribution work your GTM Systems team needs a partner on, not a vendor to hand a dashboard to.

The weekly test-and-learn cadence you describe is how I already run paid media. At Plug Power, 15+ A/B tests across audiences, keywords and landing pages landed a 25% CPA cut and a 20% conversion lift; automating the WordPress and Pardot lead flow cut cost per lead another 50%. At Pixis I managed per-client budgets of $15K-$90K a month across 8 accounts at once, deciding weekly with Amplitude and Tableau what to scale and what to cut, the same instinct your posting wants applied to new channels and ad formats before they get a permanent budget line.

PhoenixAI selling a sub-second, AI-native database into enterprise data and AI teams is exactly the complexity I want to own: enterprise buying cycles, a GTM Systems team with its own data stack, and a paid program that has outgrown ad hoc reporting. I also automate my own recurring reporting with Claude agents at Applied Materials, so the "document what works, turn it into a playbook" habit is already built in.
