

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

September 26, 2026

Hiring Team, Poshmark

Your posting asks for someone who can own a launch end to end, from positioning through the lifecycle programs that keep a customer around after it ships. At Sensata, I led the go-to-market for a new line of sensing products across North America and Europe, positioning, messaging, channel and launch execution, and it drove $2M+ in first-year revenue. The harder, less visible part was the lifecycle work underneath it: I built the behavioral-cohort KPI frameworks in SQL and GA4 that flagged the engagement and adoption moments worth acting on, the same instinct your team needs to move a customer from onboarding into long-term engagement.

I read Poshmark's role as sitting at the same intersection I have worked before: Product, Creative, CRM and Growth all pulling on one launch. At Sensata I ran 30+ structured interviews across the OEM and distributor community to keep messaging honest before it shipped, then armed 50+ reps with the sales enablement and case studies that moved win rates 30%. Being the internal authority on customer motivation only works if you go get the insight yourself, not wait for it to arrive in a deck.

The fashion-marketplace context is not new to me either. At Pixis I managed an 8-client e-commerce and D2C portfolio and rebuilt the full funnel for a leading fashion brand, feed cleanup, smart bidding, creative refresh, lookalike expansion, for 3x ROAS in a single month, on top of cutting overall client churn 50% through retention and reactivation playbooks. That is the same customer-lifecycle muscle Poshmark's role is asking for, just pointed at a marketplace instead of a single brand.

At Applied Materials today I automate my own recurring market and competitive analysis with AI agents built on Claude rather than rebuilding the same report every cycle, a habit that would free up real hours for the launch and lifecycle work this role actually needs. Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/poshmark.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar