Hiring Team, Natural Or Nothing

Your posting describes the Founder's Office as a second pair of hands across fundraising, hiring, partners and operations, someone who turns a decision into a running system instead of a slide. I am already running that trade for myself: at PriceKeel I am the founder who has to build the investor pipeline and the data room, run the CRM and deal approvals, and keep pilots moving, because there is no one else on the team to hand it to.

The unit-economics half of the role is not new territory either. At Sensata I built the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard, scoring 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target across 3 regions and 20 product lines, and used it to surface $433M in margin gaps by product line as board-ready information leadership could act on the same week, not a report that just looked thorough. I turned that into $700K plus recovered in two quarters by negotiating the outcome directly with distributors and channel partners, the same vendor-management instinct a Founder's Office needs for research partners, testing labs and logistics vendors.

The cross-functional and special-projects side is where I think I can move fastest for you. At Applied Materials I turn scattered input from Sales, Engineering and Accounts into one market-sizing view every quarter, and I run the OKR cadence and leadership decks behind the weekly and quarterly reviews that keep those functions pointed at one number instead of three. On a market-sizing project for Safran, I led a 5-consultant team scoping a market from 170 facilities down to a SAM of 28 and presented the entry case straight to their leadership, the same new-market scoping your posting lists under special projects.

I would like to talk about what the first quarter of this seat looks like at Natural Or Nothing, starting with the data room and the operating cadence underneath it. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/natural-or-nothing.
