Hiring Team, INDmoney

At Plug Power I closed the keyword-strategy gaps that were capping organic reach and built SEO content partnerships that raised organic search visibility 35%, the same kind of content engine your Founder's Office posting wants scaled into viral and creator-led growth. In that same role I ran the omni-channel paid program that funded it, Google Ads, Microsoft Ads, Meta and LinkedIn, cutting CPA 25% and bringing cost per lead down 50% once I automated the WordPress to Pardot handoff. Growth at INDmoney's size means running organic and paid as one system instead of two teams reporting past each other, and that is the system I have already built once.

At Pixis I ran performance marketing and retail media for an 8-client D2C portfolio, budgets of $15K to $90K a month per client, blending Amazon Ads and Criteo with smart bidding and creative refresh to get 3x ROAS in a month for one fashion brand, then held churn 50% lower across the portfolio for a year. That is the 360-degree media planning and acquisition-economics discipline your posting is asking for: not managing an agency's media plan from the outside, but owning the funnel and the number it produces.

The part of this req I recognize most is ownership without a map. I am building exactly that at PriceKeel right now, owning product, pricing and go-to-market execution end to end while running the first pilots and the first fundraise myself. Before that I hired and managed teams at Pixis and Plug Power, carried P&L and revenue targets, and ran the leadership decks and OKR reviews that keep a growth budget honest between quarters. A seat that reports straight to the Founder and Chief of Staff, with a different initiative to prove out every few months, is the structure I already work best in.

I am also AI-native day to day, not just on paper: I automate research, content drafts and reporting with AI agents built on Claude so more of the week goes to the experiments that move the growth number, the same habit this seat is asking for across content, media and distribution.
