Hiring Team, Serval

At Sensata I owned the GTM for a brand-new product line end to end, positioning, pricing, channel and launch, and the messaging I wrote lifted conversion 15% on priority launches while the broader launch drove $2M+ in first-year revenue. That is the same shape of problem a founding PMM at Serval walks into: no inherited messaging, no existing category playbook, just a product that needs a story the market will buy.

I know how to make that story land with technical buyers. I ran 30+ interviews with OEMs and distributors, engineers and ops people who buy on specifics, and turned those conversations into sales enablement, decks and case studies for 50+ reps that moved win rates 30%. I also ran the competitive intelligence behind it, mapping named competitors' positioning and market share across two regions so the sales team never walked into a deal unarmed.

The ambiguity part is not new either. I am currently founding PriceKeel, setting the entire go-to-market and pricing story for a category that does not have an incumbent playbook, after shaping multimillion-dollar customer quotes directly with Sensata's senior executives the year before. Serval's agent platform needs the same thing: a PMM who can define IT, security and ops buyer personas from scratch and write the technical case for them, not inherit one.
