Hiring Team, Intuit

Your posting for the Sales Operations & Strategy Manager on the Emerging Mid-Market team asks for someone who can own a scorecard end to end: units, revenue pipeline and trend, built on a forecasting framework Finance actually signs off on. That is the system I built at Sensata. The FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI scorecard tracked 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target, with win rate, avg $/win and stage distribution by salesperson, and it replaced a set of spreadsheets nobody trusted with one view Sales and Finance both used.

A scorecard only matters if it changes what the business does next, so I did not stop at the dashboard. I used it to recover $700K+ in margin in two quarters and to lift distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61%, work I ran alongside senior executives on revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes. Before that, at Sensata again, I owned the go-to-market launch for a new sensing product line across North America and Europe, the kind of GTM initiative with a measurable outcome your posting calls out directly: it closed its first year at $2M+ in revenue.

The ICP and segmentation side of this role is not new territory either. At Applied Materials I size the semiconductor market with Sales, Engineering and Accounts, turning field input into the targeting view a GTM scorecard needs, then build the forecasting models that keep pricing ahead of demand. I run the same operating loop today at PriceKeel, where I set up the company's own CRM, CPQ and forecast reviews and built the audit trail Finance uses to sign off on every call. And the AI GTM fluency your posting asks for is a daily habit, not a pilot: I automate recurring forecasting and reporting work with Claude agents at Applied Materials, and I built an AI-native product (SwipeHire) from ICP definition through GTM and pricing-tier design.

Emerging Mid-Market is the segment where a scorecard either earns trust in its first quarter or gets ignored for the rest of the year. I would bring the same pattern that held at Sensata: ship the number everyone agrees on, then use it to move the business, not just report on it.
