Hiring Team, Stripe

At Plug Power I owned $100K/month paid media budgets across Google Ads, Microsoft Ads, Meta and LinkedIn for multiple business units, building the channel mix and forecasts that leadership approved each quarter and landing a 25% cut in CPA. That is the regional budget-and-channel ownership your Money Management posting is asking for: set the mix across channels, defend it to leadership, then prove it worked.

The cross-GTM piece is familiar too. I built a B2B lead-generation playbook pairing LinkedIn Ads and Paid Search with CRM lead-scoring handoffs that convert ads into SQLs, the same audience-and-handoff design an ABM program runs on, and at Sensata I partnered with Sales and Content on integrated email and paid launch campaigns that drove 35% more qualified leads for a brand-new product line. Neither program existed before I built it.

At Pixis I hired and ran an 8-person team managing paid budgets of $15K to $90K a month across 8 clients, tying Amplitude and Tableau data on 30+ campaigns back to channel mix and pipeline health so I knew which bets to keep funding and which to cut. That same habit, read the funnel, trust the number, reallocate, is what keeps a demand generation program honest once it is live across a region instead of one account.

I also run my own recurring analysis through AI agents built on Claude at Applied Materials, so the reporting gets built once and keeps running while I spend the time on the next channel test or activation. Proof trail at adhi-growth-ai.vercel.app/ref/stripe.
