Hiring Team, Chargebee

At Pixis I ran retail media and paid social for an 8-client portfolio, budgets of $15K to $90K a month per client, and the number that mattered most was never the next signup, it was churn. I cut it 50% across that book by fixing account strategy and retention playbooks before touching a single bid. A subscription revenue platform lives and dies on that same number, and that is the lens I would bring to a Head of Growth seat at Chargebee.

I am also building PriceKeel, a decision-integrity layer for B2B SaaS deal pricing, from zero: running pilots with early customers and raising the company's first round while owning positioning and the sales narrative myself. Before that I led pricing at Sensata, recovering $700K+ in margin in two quarters and raising distributor margins from 53% to 61%, then driving +12% YoY revenue through price realignment against 10+ competitors. Growth and pricing usually sit in separate functions; I have run both and know exactly where they pull against each other.

On the acquisition side I owned $100K/month budgets across Google, Meta and LinkedIn at Plug Power, cutting CPA 25% and cost per lead 50% by automating the WordPress-to-Pardot lead flow, and delivered 16x ROAS rebuilding product feeds at GenY Medium. I also carry the operating side of a growth seat: hiring and managing teams, building the leadership decks, and running the OKR cadence that keeps a budget honest between quarters.

What I would bring on day one is a full-funnel read on acquisition and retention together, plus the pricing instincts to fix the unit economics behind a growth number, not just the channel mix. I automate the repetitive parts of that reporting cycle with AI agents built on Claude, so more of the week goes to the calls that actually move revenue.
