Hiring Team, Auxia

Your posting asks for someone to build a product marketing function from the ground up, which is a different brief than inheriting one. I have built the GTM narrative for a brand-new product line before: at Sensata I owned positioning, messaging and launch execution end to end for new sensing products with no existing playbook to follow, driving $2M+ in first-year revenue. The market there was semiconductors instead of agentic marketing, but the job, decide what the category stands for before anyone else writes that story, is the same one.

I also bring the customer-and-competitor depth a category-leader narrative needs. I ran 30+ structured interviews with OEMs and distributors to find the pain points a positioning doc alone would have missed, then turned that into sales enablement for 50+ reps that lifted win rates 30%. At Applied Materials I automate my own recurring market and competitive analysis with Claude AI agents, which is relevant here in a literal sense: I use the same category of agentic tooling Auxia sells, as a daily user, not just as a marketer describing it secondhand.

What draws me to this role specifically is that Auxia is still early enough that the category story is unwritten. I would rather build that story once, correctly, than maintain someone else's version of it.

I would like to bring that GTM discipline to Auxia's product marketing function. Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/auxia.
