Hiring Team, Poshmark

Your posting opens with owning how Poshmark shows up in inboxes, notification trays and feeds, and that is close to the work I already did at Sensata: I ran email and paid launch campaigns for new sensing products across North America and Europe, generating +35% qualified leads, then built the SQL and GA4 KPI frameworks behind the audience segmentation that made those campaigns land, lifting feature adoption 18% across 50K+ connected devices. Channel strategy only works when the segment underneath it is right, and that is the half of the job I spend the most time on.

The promotional side of your role, discount mechanics, offer construction, audience targeting, measurement, is closer to my pricing background than it might look on paper. As Pricing Lead at Sensata I built a Power BI model that flagged where a price or promo change would lift profitability more than 50%, and used that same discipline to drive +12% YoY revenue and +8% market share through competitive price realignment. Offer construction is a math problem before it is a creative one, and I like sitting where those two things meet.

On the platform side, I have been the one hand on the keyboard, not just the roadmap owner. At Plug Power I automated the WordPress-to-Pardot lead flow myself, cutting cost per lead 50%, and ran 15+ A/B tests with real bid-optimization methodology behind them rather than just calling a variant a winner. At Pixis I read user behavior in Amplitude across 30+ campaigns to rebuild retention playbooks that cut client churn 50%, the same instinct a lifecycle team needs when a segment starts disengaging.

I am currently Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials, where I run AI agents built on Claude to automate the analysis I used to do by hand, which is the same build-first habit your posting describes for this team. I would like to bring that combination of segmentation, offer math and hands-on platform work to Poshmark's lifecycle channels. Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/poshmark.
