Hiring Team, Sentry

Your posting splits the seat across three pillars, Analytics, GTM Technology and Deal Desk, and says roughly half the job is deal desk ownership: quote creation, discount review, order form generation, approval routing. I run that exact loop today. As founder of PriceKeel, I set up and run the CRM, CPQ configuration and deal approvals myself, including the self-service guardrails that let a standard deal route without escalation and the audit trail that gives Finance an explainable record behind every discount exception.

Before that I ran the pricing side of the same gate. Leading Sensata's Bleeders and Leakers program, I recovered $700K plus in margin in two quarters through deal-by-deal review against competitive gaps and each customer's own willingness to pay, then raised distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61% by repricing parts sold through distribution and documenting the new discount logic well enough for Finance to audit on sight. I built the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard that tracked 1,200 opportunities against a $627M target across three regions, surfacing $433M in margin gaps by salesperson and product line, the same pattern-finding your Analytics pillar is asking for.

The nice-to-haves in your posting are not new territory either. PriceKeel's own guardrail engine reasons about usage-based and multi-product pricing structures, and at Sensata I owned multimillion-dollar customer quotes and AP26 revenue models alongside senior executives and Finance, covering both new business and renewal motions across the Industrial BU.

Right now, as Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials, I automate repetitive deal-review and forecasting analysis with Claude AI agents, the kind of AI tooling your posting calls out for accelerating deal review. I would bring someone who has already built a CPQ and deal-approval system from the inside, not someone learning Salesforce on the job. Proof trail at adhi-pricing-ai.vercel.app/ref/sentry.
