Hiring Team, Socure

Your posting defines the funnel stage by stage: signup to first meaningful production usage, not just signup to trial. That distinction is the whole job, and it is the exact problem I built a KPI framework around at Sensata: reading usage signal across 50K+ connected devices to tell which accounts were actually activating versus which ones had signed up and stalled, then feeding that split back into the roadmap. Feature adoption moved 18%. That is the muscle Socure Launch needs pointed at onboarding and time-to-value instead of a device fleet.

Your "Who You Are" section asks for customer interviews, onboarding reviews and turning unmet needs into playbooks, not just a feature backlog. I ran 30+ interviews with OEMs and distributors at Sensata, the kind where the real finding is buried in what the customer almost didn't say, and turned that into product fixes that lifted CSAT 22%. At Pixis I did the same thing from the account side: proactive strategy and vertical playbooks that cut client churn 50% and lifted retention across an 8-client portfolio. Fintechs onboarding onto a self-service identity product will surface friction the same way; the work is listening for it early and routing it to the roadmap fast.

The experimentation side is not new either. I designed and ran 15+ A/B tests on bid strategy and creative at Plug Power, cutting CPA 25%, and built a packaging and price-increase model at Sensata that flagged where repricing could lift profitability past 50%. Both are the same discipline your posting calls out: design the experiment, read the result, ship the change to onboarding, product experience, packaging or messaging, whichever lever moved.

The closest match to what you are building is SwipeHire, a job-matching platform I shipped zero-to-one: wrote the PRD, scoped the MVP, owned the GA4 funnel-analytics stack, and ran 8+ A/B tests and 12+ user interviews that lifted activation 25% across 50+ early users. That is a self-service product's activation funnel built and instrumented by one person end to end, which is the shape of what Socure Launch needs for its next stage.
