Hiring Team, SpaceXSI

Your posting asks for a generalist who can start across Solutions Architecture, Field Engineering and Forward Deployed Engineering and build the headcount, capacity and coverage models those teams will run on. That is the exact brief I worked at Sensata: I became the planning voice senior executives relied on for AP26 revenue models and site-transition strategy, then built a BU-wide Power BI price model that flagged where a change could lift profitability past 50% for regional leads to act on, not just read.

The cross-functional half of your posting, partnering with RevOps, GTM and Finance so the operating system holds together, is work I do today. At PriceKeel I built the strategy and operations function from zero: CRM, CPQ, the quote-to-approval workflow and the Finance audit trail behind it, and I sell that system directly into RevOps, Sales leadership and Finance rather than handing it off. At Sensata I ran the Bleeders and Leakers program to $700K+ in margin recovered in 2 quarters and raised distributor margins from 53% to 61%, both built on segmentation and coverage logic, not a single clever deal.

The "dashboards and operating cadence for leadership" line is also where I already live. I run the OKR cadence with weekly and quarterly business reviews as Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials, building the leadership decks and capacity models behind it, and I automate the recurring parts of that analysis with Claude AI agents so a review starts from a flagged pattern instead of a blank spreadsheet. Before that, I hired and managed an 8-person team across 8 client accounts at Pixis, carrying the P&L myself, and built the budget plans a 100-plus-SKU marketing org at Plug Power took to leadership for approval.

What I would bring to this seat is someone who has already built more than one operating system from a blank page, across pricing, product, growth and customer success, and who treats "start as a generalist, then own a business unit end to end" as the normal shape of the job rather than a stretch.
