Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

November 8, 2026

Hiring Team, Fivetran

Your posting asks for one thing above the rest: direct ownership of email marketing and lead nurture, not a campaign calendar someone else designed. At Plug Power I owned that end to end, rebuilding the WordPress and Pardot lead flow into segmented, behavior-triggered nurture journeys that cut cost per lead 50%, while running 15+ A/B tests on messaging, timing and creative across 50+ inbound campaigns and tying every result back to MQL quality and stage-1 pipeline, not just open rates.

The lifecycle mindset you describe, building the right message for where a prospect sits in the buying journey, is how I ran email and paid launch campaigns at Sensata for a new sensing product line across North America and Europe: segmenting high-intent cohorts out of 50K+ connected devices and driving +35% qualified leads into the funnel. I partnered the same way your job calls for, with demand generation, marketing ops and sales, so a nurture email never sat in a silo from the rest of the campaign.

Database health and deliverability are the parts of this job that only show up when they break, so I treat them as owned work, not afterthoughts. I automate my own recurring reporting with AI agents built on Claude at Applied Materials, the same ChatGPT/Claude fluency your tech stack calls for, and I know what it is to run lifecycle marketing as a budget owner: at Pixis I carried P&L for an 8-client, $15K-$90K-per-month portfolio and cut churn 50% through segmented retention playbooks, proof that a nurture program's job doesn't end at the first conversion.

Proof trail at adhi-growth-ai.vercel.app/ref/fivetran.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar