Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 12, 2026

Hiring Team, Credgenics

Your posting asks for someone who has spent 2-3 years in a Founder's or CEO's Office, in a high-ownership seat with no clean lane. I have spent the last several months being that seat myself: I am the Founder and CEO of PriceKeel, where I run investor relations and fundraising for our first round, built the CRM, CPQ and deal-approval process from zero, and run pilots with early customers at the same time. There is no founder's office to support here, because I am the one deciding what gets built, who gets the capital pitch, and what the board materials say.

The other half of your posting, SQL and relational databases, advanced Excel, and dashboards that turn data into a decision, is the exact shape of the Bleeders and Leakers program I built at Sensata. I designed the FY2026 Power BI dashboard that turned 1,200 scattered pricing opportunities into a $433M shortlist across 3 regions and 20 product lines, with pipeline-funnel and win-rate views that fed sales-planning conversations directly with leadership. That dashboard is the reason I recovered $700K+ in margin in two quarters, and the same discipline is why PriceKeel's audit trail and CRM are SQL-backed from day one instead of a spreadsheet someone has to rebuild every quarter.

Investor relations and board materials are not new to me either. At PriceKeel I write the investor updates and the narrative the first round depends on, which is the same muscle your posting describes for supporting a founder through capital conversations and board-ready materials. I also raised distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61% at Sensata by building the partnerships that made repricing possible, which is the closest real analog I can offer to evaluating new partnerships and acquisition targets.

What I would bring on day one is comfort sitting inside ambiguity long enough to turn it into a number, whether that is a dashboard, an investor update, or a sales-planning conversation. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/credgenics.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar