Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 24, 2026

Hiring Team, GoKwik

Your posting asks for someone who can own a 90-day growth plan across a portfolio of consumer businesses at once, not just one brand. That is close to the exact shape of my year at Pixis: 8 client accounts running at the same time, each with its own P&L, funnel and churn risk, and each needing its own plan rather than a shared playbook stretched thin. I rebuilt the funnel for one fashion brand and got 3x ROAS in a month, then held the full portfolio for a year, cutting blended churn 50% through account strategy, channel diversification and retention playbooks built by vertical, the same kind of repeatable documentation your business reviews would need.

The P&L and unit-economics side of the role is the part I actually enjoy most. At Sensata I built the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers dashboard that tracked 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target, prioritized by where a dollar of attention would move the most margin, and used that same prioritization logic to recover $700K in margin in two quarters. That is the muscle this role is asking for: read the P&L, find where growth or profitability is actually sitting unclaimed, and act on it in weekly reviews rather than quarterly ones.

I also run my own growth plan every week right now. I am building PriceKeel, carrying P&L targets at Applied Materials, and using Claude-built AI agents to automate the repetitive analysis and reporting that eats a growth week, so more of it goes to the calls an EIR actually needs to make: which business gets attention next, and why. Coordinating that across founders and senior stakeholders, not just reporting numbers up, is what the Pixis and Sensata work both required.

I would want to spend the first conversation on one of your current portfolio businesses and walk through how I would build its 90-day plan. Proof trail at adhi-growth-ai.vercel.app/ref/gokwik.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar