PITCH DECK | GOOGLE MARKETING MANAGER, GLOBAL PARTNER EXPERIENCES

A global partner keynote is only as strong as the narrative and the cross-functional execution behind it. I have already run both, with senior leadership in the room.

Content strategy, executive narratives and customer success stories, with the partner and channel program experience to make them land.

- $2M+ first-year revenue from an end-to-end GTM and content launch
- 53% to 61% distributor and channel-partner margin lift across 3 regions
- 50+ reps enabled, +30% win rate from executive decks and case studies
- AP26 revenue models and customer quotes carried with senior executives
- Claude AI agents streamlining recurring content and pricing work today

WHY THIS DECK EXISTS

A global partner program does not lack content requests. It lacks a narrative that holds across keynotes, breakouts and the comms calendar.

What a global partner marketing function runs into

Keynote narratives, breakout sessions and promotional materials all need to tell the same story, but they are usually built by different owners on different timelines.

A partner communications calendar, social campaigns and newsletters only scale engagement if the underlying messaging framework is consistent, not reinvented per channel.

The real constraint is usually senior-leadership and external-partner alignment: a content plan that looks right in a working doc still has to survive an executive review.

What I have already run, at comparable scale

At Sensata, I owned end-to-end content strategy and GTM for new sensing products, turning 30+ partner interviews into customer success stories and launch messaging.

I drove alignment with senior executives on AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes, and raised channel-partner margins 53% to 61% across 3 regions.

I shipped executive decks and case studies for 50+ reps, the same enablement-at-scale work a global partner calendar depends on.

> This req asks for global content strategy, executive keynote narratives, and a partner communications calendar built on messaging frameworks. That is the same loop above, run across partners, OEMs and distributors on an industrial book of business.

THE REQ, MAPPED

What the Global Partner Experiences opening asks for, and where the proof sits.

What the role covers

> "Lead the strategic development and execution of high-visibility partner keynotes, crafting compelling narratives that showcase joint value."

> "Develop and oversee the overarching partner communications calendar... targeted social media campaigns and strategic email newsletters."

> "Experience planning and managing cross-functional global marketing programs while working directly with senior leadership and external partners."

My Proof

Sensata GTM and content strategy: owned positioning, launch messaging and customer success stories for new sensing products end to end, driving $2M+ first-year revenue.

Senior-leadership alignment: AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes carried directly with Sensata's senior executives.

Partner and channel programs: raised distributor and channel-partner margins 53% to 61% across 3 regions, 4 product families and 20 product lines.

Executive enablement at scale: shipped decks and case studies for 50+ reps, lifting win rates 30%.

THE SENSATA PROOF, IN DEPTH

A partner-facing launch, owned end to end: narrative, enablement and senior-leadership alignment, not just a keynote slide.

Owned content strategy and go-to-market for new sensing products across North America and Europe: positioning, channel strategy, launch execution and the customer success stories that proved it out.

$2M+

First-Year Revenue

The result of a narrative that held across the full partner and customer funnel, not just a launch doc.

53% to 61%

Channel-Partner Margin Lift

Across 3 regions, the exact multi-region partner coordination this req runs on.

+30%

Win Rate from Executive Enablement

Decks and case studies built for 50+ reps, so the narrative held outside the room I was in.

The same muscle carried AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes alongside senior executives, the direct senior-leadership and external-partner work this req asks for at global scale.

FIRST 30 DAYS

What the first month on Google Cloud's Global Partner Marketing team looks like.

WEEK 1

Learn the partner narrative end to end

Sit with Partner Marketing, Comms and the next marquee event's owners to map the current keynote narrative, breakout content and comms calendar, and where messaging already holds versus where it drifts by channel.

Why first: the same move that made the Sensata launch narrative hold, map the full story before touching a single asset.

WEEK 2-3

Ship one customer success story

Turn one partner or customer interview into a success story and keynote-ready proof point, pressure-tested with the partner and with senior leadership before it ships.

Why now: content tested with the real partner, not written in a vacuum, is what made the 53% to 61% channel gain at Sensata hold.

WEEK 4

Draft the next communications cycle

Build the messaging framework and comms calendar for the next partner cycle: social campaigns, newsletters and breakout content, all tracing back to the same keynote narrative.

Why this fast: a partner program earns trust once the narrative survives contact with a live comms calendar, not a plan.

CLOSE

You are hiring someone to make a global partner narrative hold across keynotes, channels and senior-leadership review. I have already run that loop.

The core proof is Sensata: $2M+ first-year revenue from an end-to-end content and GTM launch, a 53% to 61% channel-partner margin lift across 3 regions, and executive decks that lifted win rates 30% for 50+ reps.

What is harder to find is someone who has also carried that narrative directly to senior executives: AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes with Sensata's leadership, and at Applied Materials today, the same discipline streamlined with Claude AI agents.
