PITCH DECK | CONSUMA FOUNDER'S OFFICE

A seat built on undefined problems and no clean lane needs someone who already turns ambiguity into a tracker, a process and a closed loop.

A record of taking a mandate nobody owns yet and driving it to a finished, repeatable system, built running a company of my own and inside a multi-region, multi-client business.

- Built from zero CRM, CPQ and deal-approval process at PriceKeel, with nobody else to hand it to
- $700K+ / 2 quarters margin recovered from a mandate with no owner and no dashboard
- 53% to 61% distributor margins, built on vendor follow-ups kept unblocked through a full repricing cycle
- 8-person team, 8 clients managed at once at Pixis, each with its own follow-ups and risk to flag
- 5-consultant team led end to end on a market-entry study, presented to Safran leadership

WHY THIS DECK EXISTS

A Founder's Office seat does not come with a clean brief. The job is picking up what is undefined and driving it to done.

What that actually requires

Owning cross-functional priorities, client work, hiring, finance and reporting, events, ops and admin, without waiting for a clean mandate to land first.

Turning undefined problems into clear plans, trackers and finished output, and running the follow-ups with internal teams, vendors and partners that keep work unblocked.

Building simple processes where none exist, managing multiple priorities at once, and acting as a trusted thought partner who flags risk, not just executes.

What I have already run, at that exact layer

Built the CRM, CPQ and deal-approval process at PriceKeel from zero, running pilots and investor conversations for the first round in parallel.

Took the Bleeders and Leakers program at Sensata from a mandate with no owner to a $433M shortlist and $700K+ recovered, negotiated with senior executives in 2 quarters.

Hired and managed an 8-person team across 8 client accounts at Pixis, each with its own vendor and internal follow-ups and its own risk to flag to senior management.

> The through-line: I have already built the trackers, the follow-up discipline and the processes a Founder's Office needs, before anyone called it that job.

THE REQ, MAPPED

What the Consuma Founder's Office opening asks for, and where the proof already sits.

What the role covers

> "Own cross-functional priorities for the founders: client work, hiring, finance and reporting, events, ops, admin."

> "Turn undefined problems into clear plans, trackers, and finished output, without waiting to be told how."

> "Run follow-ups with internal teams, vendors, and partners and keep work unblocked."

> "Be a trusted thought partner to the founders, flagging risks and making recommendations, not just executing."

My proof

Cross-functional ownership: carried P&L and revenue targets, hiring and leadership decks at once across Sensata, Pixis and Applied Materials, one desk for all of it.

Undefined to finished output: built the Bleeders and Leakers tracker that turned 1,200 scattered opportunities into a $433M shortlist with no prior owner or dashboard.

Follow-ups that keep work unblocked: raised distributor and channel-partner margins 53% to 61% through sustained vendor follow-up across a full repricing cycle.

Trusted thought partner: reported recommendations straight to senior management at Pixis and ran OKRs with Applied Materials leadership on a weekly and quarterly cadence.

THE PROOF, IN DEPTH

Bleeders and Leakers: a margin mandate nobody owned yet, turned into a negotiated number and a repeatable tracker.

Built as the owner of a program with no existing dashboard, no existing owner and no existing partner relationships, the same starting point an undefined Founder's Office priority usually looks like.

$700K+ / 2Q

Margin Recovered

Negotiated from competitive gaps and customer willingness to pay, against a $627M target.

53% to 61%

Partner Margin Lift

Built on vendor and channel-partner follow-ups kept unblocked through a full repricing cycle.

8 Clients / 8 Reports

Portfolio Managed at Once

Hired and managed the Pixis team running 8 client accounts, each with its own follow-ups and churn risk to flag.

The same instinct runs through PriceKeel: build the tracker, the process and the follow-up discipline first, so the work keeps moving without someone re-chasing it every week.

FIRST 30 DAYS

What the first month inside Consuma's Founder's Office would look like.

WEEK 1

Sit inside the real signal

Talk to the founders, client leads, finance and ops to find where client work, hiring or reporting is stalling today, the same audit that grounded the Bleeders and Leakers program before a dashboard existed.

Why first: an undefined mandate built on assumptions instead of real blockers is the fastest way to miss the mark.

WEEK 2-3

Ship the first tracker or finished output

Take one cross-functional problem, whether a client deliverable, a hiring pipeline or a finance report, and close it end to end, the same move that turned 1,200 scattered opportunities into one shortlist at Sensata.

Why now: one closed-out problem that unblocks the founders beats a week-one list of ideas.

WEEK 4

Turn the first win into the process

Use what the first deliverable proved to build the simple system around it, be it a vendor follow-up cadence, a client-reporting process or an events checklist, so it keeps running without rebuilding it from scratch.

Why this fast: a process only earns trust once it has already closed one real problem.

CLOSE

Consuma needs someone who treats an undefined problem as theirs to close, not someone else's to define. I have already run that playbook.

The core proof is Sensata and PriceKeel together: a $700K+ margin program built from a mandate with no owner, and a company of my own where I built the CRM, CPQ and deal-approval process from zero because nothing like it existed yet.

What is harder to find is someone who has done that inside a large, multi-region business and run an 8-client portfolio at once, with the follow-up discipline and the process-building habit to keep it all moving. That combination, not a single function, is what a Founder's Office needs most.
