Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 30, 2026

Hiring Team, Botrista

Your posting opens with Salesforce administration, lead routing and data governance before it ever gets to strategy, and that order is the right one. I already run that stack for a live deal-pricing platform at PriceKeel: I own the CRM and CPQ end to end, including deal structure, discount approvals and the data governance behind every pricing decision, plus the audit trail Finance can review on demand. A revenue system is only as useful as the data feeding it, and that is where I start too.

The reporting and forecasting side is not new either. At Sensata I built the Bleeders & Leakers Power BI pipeline, 1,200 opportunities against a $627M target, with win rate, dollar-per-win and stage distribution broken out by salesperson. That pipeline surfaced $433M in margin gaps and recovered $700K+ in two quarters, and I used the same segment-level view to raise distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61%. Your posting asks which verticals and territories carry the most long-term value and where the early churn signals show up; that is exactly the cut of data this kind of dashboard answers first, before the aggregate number does.

On cross-functional partnership: at Applied Materials I carry P&L and revenue targets while running the operating cadence (OKRs, weekly and quarterly business reviews) across Sales, Engineering and Accounts, and I have automated a chunk of that recurring analysis with AI agents built on Claude rather than rebuilding the same spreadsheet every quarter. For a CRO-facing seat with Sales, Marketing, Customer Success and Finance all pulling from the same system of record, that habit of automating the repeatable report is what keeps the operator function from drowning in its own reporting load.

I would like to build the operational foundation for Botrista's next stage of growth. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/botrista.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar