Hiring Team, Gap Inc.

Your posting asks the Manager, Pricing Analytics to own the strategic discount budget and reconcile in-season execution against the forecast, not just report on it after the fact. I ran that exact mandate at Sensata leading the Bleeders and Leakers program: discount decisions checked deal by deal against competitive gaps and customer willingness to pay, recovering $700K plus in margin in two quarters and raising distributor margins from 53% to 61% in the same stretch.

I also built the aggregated reporting this role owns. The FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard I built reconciled 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627 million target across three regions, four product families and twenty product lines, surfacing $433 million in margin gaps so leadership could prioritize by salesperson and product line instead of guessing. I paired that with AP26 revenue scenarios and multimillion dollar customer quotes built directly with senior executives, the same "what if" modeling your team packages for Merchandise Planning and Company Planning.

The pricing-agent half of this role is not new territory either. At PriceKeel, the company I founded, I designed a guardrail engine that recommends an explainable discount guardrail learned from a company's own closed-won and closed-lost deals, and built the audit trail that gives Finance an evidence-backed record behind every exception before it goes final. As Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials I automate repetitive pricing and forecasting analysis with agents built on Claude and validate every output before it feeds a recommendation, the same discipline your posting asks for before a pricing agent's output is trusted.

I also know what it means to translate analysis for partners who did not build the model. I have presented pricing recommendations to senior executives at Sensata and run the operating cadence of weekly and quarterly reviews that keeps a cross-functional team aligned on what the numbers mean, not just what they say, the same translation work this role does for Merchandising, Planning and Commerce and Experience.
