Hiring Team, Horizon3.ai

Your posting draws a hard line between this role and a traditional IT PM or project coordinator seat: a RevOps Program Manager here owns a complex, cross-functional initiative from scoping through implementation with little to no day-to-day direction. That is the exact shape of the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers program I scoped and ran at Sensata: a margin-recovery initiative against a $627M target across 1,200 opportunities, 3 regions and 4 product families, with its own governance dashboard tracking milestones, dependencies and risk by salesperson, and $433M in surfaced gaps I turned into $700K+ of recovered margin in two quarters.

Deal Desk is the one line in your posting I did not have to stretch toward. I founded PriceKeel to be exactly that: I set up and run the CRM, CPQ, forecast and pipeline reviews, and deal approvals myself, with an audit trail Finance can point to for every pricing decision. That is daily practice in the revenue-technology and Quote-to-Cash territory your Strategy and Programs function is being built to own, and it means I walk in already fluent in where a deal desk process breaks under pressure.

The rest of the job is stakeholder work: getting decisions made across Sales, Finance, Product and Engineering without owning any of their headcount. At Sensata I ran that cadence partnering with senior executives on AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes, and raised distributor margins from 53% to 61% by getting Sales, Finance and channel partners aligned on new terms in under two quarters. At Applied Materials I carry that same cross-functional sizing work today, now with Claude AI agents clearing the repetitive analysis so the judgment calls get more of my week.

Horizon3 just closed a $250M round on a product that has to keep scaling without its operating structure breaking under it, which is exactly the kind of ambiguity I chose to build PriceKeel into in the first place. I would bring the same scope-it-yourself, govern-it-yourself pattern to the initiatives this function takes on first. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/horizon3-ai.
