Hiring Team, TypeSafe AI

Right now I'm the whole go-to-market team at my own company. At PriceKeel I take the first call with a RevOps or Finance leader, run the pilot, work the deal through approvals, and keep the CRM, CPQ and pipeline reviews honest because nobody else will. So when your posting describes one person owning first contact through POC, contracting and post-sales support, it reads less like a stretch and more like the job I already do, just for a much smaller customer base than yours.

I've also owned the customer side. As a Customer Success Manager at Pixis, an AI platform, I hired and ran an 8-person team on an 8-client book and cut churn 50% with proactive account strategy and vertical playbooks. The lesson that stuck: retention came from the playbook, not from heroics on a bad week. At Sensata I ran 30+ interviews with OEMs and distributors and pushed what I heard into product decisions, which raised CSAT 22%. Then, as Pricing Lead, I recovered $700K+ in margin in two quarters through customer negotiations built on competitive gaps and willingness to pay. That's the AE muscle your role asks for, practiced on multimillion-dollar quotes.

The part of your posting I'd most enjoy is building the systems. At Applied Materials I automate repetitive analysis with AI agents built on Claude. At Plug Power I automated the WordPress and Pardot lead flow and cut cost per lead 50%. At Sensata I built a Power BI pipeline dashboard that tracked 1,200 opportunities against a $627M target by salesperson, with win rate and stage distribution, so leadership could see $433M in margin gaps in one place. A customer base that grows as fast as yours needs that kind of tooling before it needs headcount.

A model that went from launch to a third of the Fortune 500 in two months means every onboarding, security review and support ticket is a chance to turn early users into contracts. I'd like to help build the playbook that does that. Happy to walk through how I'd set up the first-contact-to-signature flow.
