Hiring Team, Fivetran

Your posting is specific about what this role actually owns: the AMER Enterprise pipeline number, not a media plan that sits next to it. That is the job I already have at Plug Power, where I ran $100K/month in paid budgets across Google, Microsoft, Meta and LinkedIn, cut CPA 25% and cost per lead 50%, and tied 50+ inbound campaigns to MQL quality and Stage 1 opportunities so the number I reported was pipeline, not clicks.

The parts of the role that are less about the ad platform and more about judgment are where I think I add the most. At Sensata, paid and content launch programs across North America and Europe drove +35% qualified leads, and I built the SQL and GA4 frameworks underneath them to separate a real high-intent account from a vanity click. At Pixis, I ran an 8-client, $15K-90K/month paid-media portfolio and cut churn 50% by reallocating budget toward what was actually converting and away from what was not, the same test-and-learn discipline your posting asks for across Meta, Reddit and LinkedIn. None of that work stopped at the lead. I have always had to answer for what happened after it.

I also already run the AI side of this job, not as an experiment but as a habit. As Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials, I use AI agents built on Claude to cut the time I spend on repetitive market and competitive analysis, the same doing-more-with-less approach your posting calls out for running and tuning demand programs. Founding PriceKeel has sharpened that further: when there is no team to hand the reporting to, you build the tool that does it for you.

I would like to bring that pipeline-first, test-and-learn approach to the AMER Enterprise number at Fivetran. Proof trail at adhi-growth-ai.vercel.app/ref/fivetran.
