Hiring Team, Artos,

The line in your JD about communicating to an audience that is skeptical of AI, fluent in regulatory science, and conservative about tooling is exactly the marketing problem I find interesting. Translating dense product reality to senior buyers is most of what I have done for the last 18 months at Sensata.

What I bring to first-marketing-hire at Artos:

- Sensata translate-tech-to-VP: Ran 30+ customer interviews with OEMs and distributors. Sales enablement library used by 50+ reps lifted win rates 30%. $2M+ first-year revenue on new product lines via positioning and launch content.
- Plug Power AEO/GEO live: Shipped SEO + Answer Engine Optimization programs so the brand surfaced in ChatGPT/Claude buyer queries. Multi-channel paid (-25% CPA, +20% conversion). Coordinated 3 industry conferences and 6+ webinars.
- SwipeHire founder marketing: Built brand from zero on Python + OpenAI + React (app.swipehire.io). 50+ users, +25% activation, zero paid budget. Founder-led LinkedIn + X content drove 60% of net-new signups.
- Pixis AI platform CSM: Trained 8 enterprise teams on AI bidding methodology. I have done the "convince skeptical buyers AI is real" work for enterprise.

On the regulatory side: I will be transparent - I have not personally written FDA submissions (CTD/IND/NDA). But I have shipped sales enablement and product content for technical buyers in adjacent regulated industries (industrial OEM compliance), and I learn audience-specific vocabulary fast. Happy to discuss in detail.

Looking forward to talking.
