Hiring Team, Roku

A CPG CMO, a Political media buyer, a QSR director, an Auto OEM, and a Retail commerce lead are all buying CTV in 2026, and they are buying five different products. CPG wants incrementality against linear. Political wants reach on streaming-only households. QSR wants trade-area lift, not national GRPs. Auto wants attention time. Retail wants shoppable surfaces and commerce data back. Roku has all five stories in the same data. The Ad Marketing job is to tell five different stories from that data, in a way each vertical recognizes itself in. That is exactly the motion I have run for four years, just in industrial verticals instead of CTV.

Sensata, vertical storytelling + enablement on a B2B launch. I lead product marketing for new industrial sensing products across NA and EU. Ran 30+ structured OEM and distributor interviews, cut 80% of the data, kept the 20% reps could quote verbatim, and built four vertical battlecards and case-study one-pagers for 50+ reps. +30% win rates, $2M+ first-year revenue, +35% qualified leads. The job was turning the same product into four different reasons to buy, one per vertical.

Pixis, AI adtech client marketing at enterprise scale. Owned an 8-client enterprise book (fashion D2C, CPG, retail) on an AI adtech SaaS with a $1.4M shared budget across Google, Meta, programmatic. 3x ROAS in 30 days for a leading fashion brand, -50% churn across the book. Built the vertical case-study library Sales used for expansion pitches. Adtech buyers are measurement-skeptical by default; you earn their spend by showing them proof that looks like their category, not proof that looks like your template. That pattern is Roku's buyer too.

Safran consulting, multi-vertical positioning from first principles. Led a 5-consultant pro-bono engagement for Safran: TAM/SAM across four verticals (aerospace, defense, healthcare, scientific research), 10+ competitor teardowns, positioning for 3 B2B product lines, GTM presented to Safran leadership. That is the Client Marketing and Strategy deliverable with a different buyer.

Plug Power, integrated B2B marcom including LinkedIn. Rebuilt the full B2B stack (Salesforce + Adobe + GA + GTM) and ran integrated campaigns on LinkedIn, SA360, Meta, and email for hydrogen-energy decision makers. -25% CPA, +20% conversion. LinkedIn + vertical industry outlets is the JD's primary channel set; it is also my home turf.

On "no job too big or small": I founded SwipeHire, a production AI product on OpenAI API + React. Solo, six weeks, 50+ users, 8+ A/B tests, +25% activation. Positioning, landing pages, lifecycle emails, support -- all me. Short-term doer is not a phrase; it is the default mode.

Boston-based; NY relocation on the table. Available this week. Resume and portfolio: adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/roku. Would welcome 20 minutes on FY27 vertical priorities and where the biggest narrative gap is right now.
