Hiring Team, Good Culture

The cottage-cheese-as-protein wave is one of those cultural moments where a small CPG team gets to either ride or define the curve. Good Culture has been doing the harder of the two for years - clean-label, pasture-raised, brand voice that respects the ingredient and the eater. The Digital Marketing Manager seat sits exactly where that voice lives day-to-day, so I wanted to write a real letter and not a form one.

On autonomous, insights-backed shipping inside a high-growth brand, the closest analog I have is SwipeHire. I built and shipped an AI matching product solo on Python + OpenAI API + React, instrumented GA4 + GTM + Amplitude on day one, and ran 8 A/B tests with sample-size and significance gates defined up front. The first 50+ users came through organic Reddit and Twitter participation - I showed up in r/cscareerquestions and r/h1b as a participant first, surfaced the product in context, then let the cohort retention data drive what came next. The instinct that a brand has to show up where the wave is breaking is the same one Good Culture's editorial calendar already runs on.

On content + creative cadence at portfolio scale, Pixis is the proof. I managed an 8-person team across creative, account, and platform and a $1.4M aggregate annual book across 8 D2C and B2B SaaS clients with per-client monthly budgets between $15K and $90K. Weekly creative-test cadence, weekly client CFO QBRs translating KPIs into pipeline narrative, brand-voice governance across the 8 books, and on one D2C beauty client a holdout-incrementality slice that drove 3x ROAS the next month. The agency-partner-leadership and budget-ownership muscles got built daily for 14 months.

On creator + influencer + UGC strategy, GenY is the closest direct work. I delivered 16x ROAS for a D2C consumer brand by rebuilding Shopify Merchant Center + Meta catalog feeds, running a weekly creative-test cadence, and feeding the founder-facing dashboards that informed creator briefs and brand-content rotation week over week.

On the "Creativity, AI & Consumer-Centric Storytelling" instinct, the two AI products I've shipped solo (SwipeHire on OpenAI API + NSE Paper-Trading Bot on Claude API), my 4 Anthropic Claude certifications, and Cursor + Claude as a daily workflow add up to a marketer who treats AI as a co-pilot for consumer storytelling, not as a replacement. The brand voice still belongs to a human; AI just makes the storytelling cycle tighter.

On operator discipline, the Sensata customer-story pipeline (30+ structured interviews, positioning rewrite, sales-enablement library to 50+ reps, +30% win rates) and a $627M margin-recovery executive Power BI dashboard across 1,200 opportunities are the process-and-rigor side of the work. Highly organized and creative big-thinking is not an either/or here.

Remote works perfectly. Attaching my resume and a 6-slide pitch deck mapping these proofs to the role line-by-line, plus three concrete experiments I'd run in the first 30 days. Full portfolio at adhi-growth-ai.vercel.app/ref/good-culture-dmm.
