

GROWTH LEAD | SAMPLE WORK

The buyer Openmart sells to is the buyer I market to.

Pixis B2B SaaS adtech tenure + Plug Power demand engine rebuilt from scratch + AI product shipped solo on OpenAI API. Five slides of evidence, one closing pitch.

Shipped an AI product solo, end-to-end.

Openmart's growth lead has to launch motions, instrument them, and iterate faster than the buyer's incumbent (ZoomInfo, Apollo) can react. That requires zero-to-one muscle.

Method: Identified the activation event (3+ AI tutor conversations in week one) by regressing D30 retention on event-stream variables in Amplitude. Instrumented the funnel to optimize for it. Eight pre-registered A/B tests, win/loss/no-conclusion taxonomy documented.

WHAT "SHIPPED SOLO" ACTUALLY MEANT

LAYER	BUILT
Backend	Python + OpenAI API + Postgres
Frontend	React + custom CMS
Instrumentation	GA4 + GTM event tracking, day one
Product analytics	Amplitude (event taxonomy + cohort)
Positioning	ICP teardown, visa-aware messaging
Acquisition	Reddit (r/cscareerquestions, r/h1b), Twitter, weekly product updates
Iteration loop	Weekly retention cohort review

- 50+ users
- +25% activation
- 8 A/B tests
- 4 weeks to v1

AI is my workflow, not a side project.

Openmart sells AI productivity to revenue leaders who will audit your claims. The growth lead has to use AI in their own workflow before pitching it to the buyer. I do.

PIXIS: TRAINED 8 ENTERPRISE MARKETERS ON AI BIDDING TOOLS

Translated AI bidding methodology, holdout-validated lift, and creative-variant performance into outcomes a CFO could sign off on. Same translation muscle Openmart's growth lead needs for the buyer.

The point: Buyers can tell the difference between someone who uses AI tools and someone who treats them as a side project. AI is how I do the work, not what I do on top of the work.

Came in early. Built the engine.

Openmart's growth lead inherits a 6-person company and has to build the demand engine. I have done that exact rebuild before, on someone else's stack.

CLOSED-LOOP ATTRIBUTION FLOW | REBUILT FROM SCRATCH

WHAT "EARLY GROWTH HIRE" ACTUALLY MEANT

- Wrote the UTM spec from scratch
- Rebuilt GTM containers (every property)
- Validated lead routing into Salesforce campaign attribution
- Adobe Audience Manager for account-level segmentation + suppression
- Coordinated a 4-vendor RFP: scored attribution depth + integration cost
- Negotiated terms with Procurement
- Documented SLAs and escalation paths in writing

The durable outcome was not -25% CPA. It was that the next growth hire inherited a system rather than a black box. That is the gift you give an early-stage company: leverage that compounds after you leave.

Same buyer. Same conversation.

Openmart's buyer is the revenue leader, sales-ops manager, or marketing-ops director at a B2B SaaS or enterprise selling into SMBs. Pixis sold to that buyer for four years. I ran the book.

WHY THIS MATTERS FOR OPENMART

Openmart sells data quality + AI productivity to buyers who will audit the claim. I have run those audits from the buyer side. Means I know which proof points land (verified contacts, lift over baseline, time-to-pipeline) and which slide off the deck.

8-person team led

The closing pitch.

Six-person YC seed company. Founder-led hiring. AI alternative to ZoomInfo. The growth lead has to ship at startup speed, talk to a buyer who's been pitched ten times this quarter, and use AI tools faster than the buyer can.

AI-NATIVE EXECUTION

SwipeHire on Python + OpenAI API + React. 4 Claude certs. Prompt-based iteration as default workflow.

B2B SAAS BUYER FLUENCY

Pixis 8-client portfolio, $1.4M, same revenue-ops / sales-leader buyer Openmart sells to.

DEMAND ENGINE REBUILD

Plug Power early growth hire. UTM spec, GTM, Salesforce attribution. -25% CPA. System inherited by next hire.

ZERO-TO-ONE SHIPPING

SwipeHire solo zero-to-one. ICP, instrumentation, 8 A/B tests, weekly cohort. +25% activation. 50+ users.

Why Openmart, specifically

The buyer Openmart sells to is the buyer I have been marketing to for four years at Pixis. Same psychographic, same evaluation rubric, same CFO audit. Plus the AI alternative-to-ZoomInfo positioning is the kind of message that needs a marketer who has shipped AI products themselves to argue credibly.

Why this role, specifically

Six-person stage means the growth lead builds the engine, not just runs it. I have done that build at Plug Power. SwipeHire proves I can ship from scratch. The combination of AI fluency + B2B SaaS adtech tenure + demand-engine-rebuild muscle is unusual on a single CV. Worth 30 minutes to confirm.
