Hiring Team, Vercel

Your posting describes a gatekeeper: someone who owns deal approvals and quote configuration in CPQ while keeping the underlying opportunity data clean enough for Finance to trust. I ran a version of that at Sensata, leading the Bleeders and Leakers program, deal-by-deal negotiation against competitive gaps and each customer's own willingness to pay, and recovered $700K plus in margin in two quarters. That is quote-to-contract judgment, not a spreadsheet exercise.

I have since built the tooling side of that same gate. PriceKeel, the company I founded, reads a live discount exception inside the deal platform and recommends a guardrail learned from a company's own closed-won and closed-lost history. I set up and run its CRM, CPQ configuration and deal-approval workflow myself, then built the audit trail that gives Finance an explainable record behind every exception, so I know what "revenue integrity" has to look like from both the analyst's chair and the system's.

The cross-functional part of this role is not new to me either. At Sensata I partnered with senior executives and Finance on AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes, and built the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard that tracked 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target across three regions, surfacing $433M in margin gaps by salesperson so leadership could prioritize instead of guess. Raising distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61% in the same program came from documenting the new discount logic well enough that Finance could audit it on sight.

Right now, as Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials, I automate repetitive pricing and forecasting analysis with Claude AI agents, the same instinct behind your team's push to automate process where it scales. I would bring someone who has already sat on the Deal Desk side of a quote, not someone learning CPQ configuration on the job. Proof trail at adhi-pricing-ai.vercel.app/ref/vercel.
