Hiring Team, Navan

This role puts ownership of the send on one person: build, QA and optimize modular emails, then review Marketing Operations' setup to catch a targeting, automation, tracking or delivery issue before it ships. I ran a version of that discipline at Plug Power, where I automated the WordPress and Pardot lead flow end to end, building the segmentation and QA logic behind it myself and cutting cost per lead 50%. I also tied Salesforce, Adobe Analytics, GA and Google Tag Manager into one Mar-Tech stack for closed-loop reporting, so a send problem showed up in the numbers before a quarter closed, not after.

The roadmap half of the role, nurture, campaigns, newsletters and follow-up journeys tied to pipeline and revenue, is close to what I owned at Sensata. I led email and paid launch campaigns that generated 35% more qualified leads for a 50K-plus connected-device product line, and I ran 30-plus customer interviews with OEMs and distributors first so the messaging and creative calls were grounded in what those buyers actually said, not a guess. That positioning work lifted conversion 15% and, paired with the sales enablement content it fed, raised win rates 30% across 50-plus reps.

Database health and testing discipline are the other half I would bring. At GenY Medium I ran the database audits and dashboard work that improved data accessibility 30%, and at Plug Power I ran 15-plus A/B tests across 50-plus inbound campaigns, tying SEM performance to MQL quality and stage 1 opportunities instead of raw traffic. I have also made the tradeoff calls this role asks for directly, presenting $100K-per-month budgets and the plans behind them to a leadership team for approval across multiple business units.

As Strategic Marketing III at Applied Materials now, I automate repetitive reporting and forecasting with Claude AI agents, the same instinct to automate before scaling that a Digital Demand Gen team pushing a multi-quarter calendar needs. Proof trail: adhi-growth.vercel.app/ref/navan
