Hiring Team, Automatiq

Your Pricing Analyst role asks for someone in an analytical or pricing role, and pricing is the one line of work I have both led and founded a company around. At Sensata I ran the Bleeders and Leakers program, negotiating repricing deal by deal against competitive gaps and customer willingness to pay, which recovered $700K+ in margin in two quarters and raised distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61%.

That same willingness-to-pay discipline is what I built PriceKeel around: a guardrail engine that scores each discount exception against a company's own closed-won and closed-lost precedent, with an audit trail Finance can check on demand. It is the same kind of live, data-driven pricing logic a ticketing-pricing platform runs on, just applied to B2B SaaS deals instead of event seats.

I want to be direct about the trade I am making with this application: the Analyst title and the stated range sit below where my Sensata scope landed, and I am applying anyway because the pricing domain fit here, consumer-facing dynamic pricing in a market I have not worked in, is worth more to me right now than title parity. The MS coursework in Pricing Policies and Advanced Pricing, plus my Advanced Pricing Certification, round out the academic side of the same interest.
