Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 21, 2026

Hiring Team, Mercor

Your posting asks for someone who can drive high-priority initiatives across sales, partnerships, marketing and hiring for the Head of Engagement Management, the organization's highest-leverage problems, in your words. I already run that function for an entire company: as founder of PriceKeel, I own the CRM, CPQ, forecast and pipeline reviews and every deal approval myself, while building the go-to-market motion from scratch, holding investor conversations, running the first customer pilots and recruiting the earliest hires. That is the same shape of ownership your Chief of Staff seat needs, just pointed at someone else's agenda instead of my own.

The AI-interest line in your posting is not a box I am checking. At Applied Materials I automate recurring GTM analysis with AI agents built on Claude so the forecasting and market-sizing models I run across multiple product groups do not eat a week every time an input changes, and I built an AI job-matching platform from a blank page in a prior project, writing the PRD, scoping the MVP and hiring the team that shipped it. Partnerships that create joint go-to-market opportunities with AI companies are a motion I understand from both sides of the table.

I also know what it takes to turn a partnership or a launch into revenue instead of a slide. I owned GTM for new sensing products across North America and Europe at Sensata, positioning, pricing, channel and launch end to end, which drove $2M+ in first-year revenue, and I recovered $700K+ in margin in 2 quarters leading a program from problem definition to a negotiated outcome. Commercial judgment that holds up in a negotiation is the same judgment a Chief of Staff needs when a partnership term sheet lands on their desk.

I would like to bring that combination, founder-level ownership of a company's highest-leverage problems, a daily habit of building with AI rather than a pilot of it, and GTM work that has already moved real revenue, to Mercor's Chief of Staff, GTM seat. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/mercor.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar