Hiring Team, Enrich Labs

Your posting says the strategy and the data are already in place, and the open question is the next growth phase: a new channel, a journey fix, or spend that should move. That is the exact decision I made at Plug Power with a $100K a month budget across Google Ads, Microsoft Ads, Meta and LinkedIn. I did not add headcount or guess at a new channel first; I reallocated spend toward what was already earning it, cut CPA 25% through bid and creative testing, then closed a SEO gap that lifted organic visibility 35%. Cost per lead came down 50% once I automated the lead flow behind it. That is the DTC growth story your req is asking for: evidence, not a title.

At Pixis I ran that same decision at portfolio scale across Paid Social, PPC and retail media (Amazon Ads, Criteo) for 8 D2C client accounts, budgets of $15K to $90K a month each. One fashion brand got 3x ROAS in a month once I rebuilt its funnel end to end: feed hygiene, bidding, creative, retargeting. Holding that account for a year, I cut churn 50% across the portfolio with account strategy and retention playbooks built by vertical, which is the retention and CRM direction your role is set to expand into. Earlier, at GenY Medium, rebuilding Google Merchant Center and Meta catalog feeds got D2C brands up to 16x ROAS.

I also carry the operating side a growth seat like this needs: I have hired and managed teams, carried P&L and revenue targets, and built the leadership decks and OKR cadence that keep a $5M+ digital budget honest quarter over quarter, most recently founding PriceKeel and carrying P&L targets at Applied Materials. I use AI agents built on Claude to automate the repetitive half of that reporting, so more of the week goes to deciding what to test next.

What I would bring on day one is a full-funnel read on Paid Social, PPC and SEO, plus the pricing and packaging instincts to question whether the channel mix or the offer itself is the real lever. Proof trail at adhi-growth-ai.vercel.app/ref/enrich-labs.
