Hiring Team, FinTech Client (via Michael Page)

Your posting asks for someone who can partner directly with the CEO on strategic growth and track the business performance metrics that tell leadership where to act. I built exactly that system at Sensata: a Power BI dashboard ranking 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target across 3 regions, 4 product families and 20 product lines, which surfaced $433M in margin gaps and, once I ran the negotiations it pointed to, closed $700K+ of that in 2 quarters.

I now run the CEO's office of my own company, PriceKeel, a decision-integrity layer for B2B SaaS deal pricing that I sell directly into Finance and RevOps leadership. There is no team to hand a problem to: I own the CRM and CPQ, sit in the forecast and pipeline reviews, sign off on deal approvals, and I am the one raising the first round. That is the same scope your posting calls "significant visibility and ownership across key strategic business initiatives," just run from the founder's seat instead of alongside one.

The structured side of that work shows up earlier too. I led a 5-consultant team at Simon Vision Consulting, sizing a market from 170 facilities down to a SAM of 28 across four verticals, then presented the market-entry recommendation directly to Safran's leadership. Business transformation and operational excellence, the two words your posting leans on hardest, both come down to the same habit: take an ambiguous business question, build the model, and carry it to a decision rather than a slide.

At Applied Materials now, I partner across Sales, Engineering and Accounts to turn scattered field input into one market view while carrying P&L and revenue targets, and I automate the repetitive half of that work with AI agents built on Claude. I would like to bring that same pattern, direct ownership, tracked metrics, a decision at the end, to the CEO's office you are building out.
