Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 16, 2026

Hiring Team, Pocket FM

The clearest proof I have that I can run an operating rhythm a founder will actually use is the Power BI tracker I built at Sensata: it ranked 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target, surfaced $433M in margin risk before anyone asked, and fed directly into a $700K plus recovery across two quarters. That is the loop a Founder's Office needs: turn scattered signal into one view, flag the risk early, and keep decisions sequenced so nothing stalls behind a bottleneck.

I also know what it means to own the narrative with no one to hand it to. I started PriceKeel this year, a B2B SaaS pricing company, and I am the one building the investor story alongside the product: who the buyer is, why the guardrail matters, and what proof closes the round. Running pilots and fundraising in parallel, on the same calendar, is what taught me that an investment narrative and an operating cadence are really the same discipline told to two different audiences.

The cross-functional half of this role is already my day job. At Applied Materials I turn scattered field input from Sales, Engineering and Accounts into one market-sizing view leadership can act on, run the OKR cadence behind weekly and quarterly reviews, and automate the repetitive analysis with AI agents built on Claude so the dashboards stay current without someone chasing them. That same instinct, build the framework, track the risk, close the loop, is how I led a five-consultant market-sizing engagement during my MS, narrowing 170 facilities to a SAM of 28 and presenting the result straight to Safran's leadership.

Pocket FM is running global expansion and category creation at the scale of 250 million plus listeners, and a Founder's Office seat there needs someone who can hold the meeting systems, the dashboards and the investor-facing story at once, across time zones, without dropping any of them. I have been doing versions of exactly that since 2021, across a large industrial company, an AI platform, and now a company I run myself. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/pocket-fm.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar