Hiring Team, Paraform

Paraform's ask is to build a product marketing function from the ground up for a recruiting marketplace, and I already ran that exact motion inside the same domain: I built an AI job-matching platform from zero to one, wrote the PRD, defined the ICP, modeled three subscription pricing tiers off competitor teardowns, and shipped the positioning that took it to 50+ early users. That is the category-narrative and launch work your Product Marketing Lead role is asking for, done inside a two-sided marketplace, not borrowed from an adjacent one.

The same instinct for testing a story against real users before shipping it carries over to Sensata, where I owned go-to-market for a new line of sensing products end to end (positioning, pricing, channel, launch) for $2M+ in first-year revenue, then turned 30+ customer interviews with OEMs and distributors into messaging that lifted conversion 15%. I built the sales enablement, decks and case studies, that went with it for a 50-person sales team, raising win rates 30%, the enablement muscle a Product Marketing Lead has to bring on day one, not build later.

I also keep building with AI instead of only marketing it. I automate repetitive market analysis with Claude agents at Applied Materials today, and before that I hired and managed an 8-person team running an 8-client, P&L-owning portfolio at Pixis, an AI ad platform. Between the two, I have shipped an AI product's launch story and scaled a team around one, which is the pairing your preferred qualifications call out directly.

The fuller build, PRD to positioning to pricing tiers, is at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/paraform if you want the detail behind any of this.
