Hiring Team, Stealth Startup

Your posting is not asking for a co-founder to start from a blank page. It is asking for someone to take a built product, a built team and real capital, and make it a company. I have already run that handoff on myself: I am the founder and CEO of PriceKeel, where I own strategy, product direction and the P&L, and I built SwipeHire the same way before it, from a PRD to an MVP to 50+ early users, hiring and running the team around it. Stepping into a product someone else built and owning it end to end is the exact job I keep choosing to do.

The go-to-market half of your role is where I spend most weeks. At PriceKeel I designed the guardrail engine and audit trail that sit at the center of its go-to-market and sell it to RevOps, Sales leadership and Finance against legacy CPQ and deal-desk tooling, while running pilots and raising the company's first round from investors myself. At Sensata I carried P&L and revenue targets on a multi-$100M business, drove AP26 revenue models with senior executives, and recovered $700K plus in margin in two quarters by turning a pricing program into negotiated outcomes with distributors. Positioning, pricing, distribution and the fundraising conversation that follows are not new ground for me.

The studio side of the brief, building product direction alongside engineering and design, is also a habit I already have. At Applied Materials I turn scattered input from Sales, Engineering and Accounts into one market view every quarter, and I automate the repetitive parts of that work with AI agents built on Claude, which has given me a working sense of where an AI system's output can be trusted and where a person still has to check it. That is the same judgment call your brief asks for on security, privacy and responsible AI as a company scales.

I would like to talk about which of the two companies needs a founder first, and what I would do in the first quarter. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/stealth-startup.
