Hiring Team, Egnyte

Your posting wants someone who can take Financial Services, a named vertical with a named buyer, and turn Egnyte's content security and governance platform into a narrative Sales can repeat in a room with a bank or an insurer. At Sensata I owned the GTM for a brand new product line end to end, positioning, pricing, channel and launch, and the first year closed at $2M+ in revenue because the sales team had a story they could repeat to a buyer who had never heard of us. Building a vertical narrative from a blank page is not new work for me, it is the same job with a different buyer.

The posting is specific about what it wants from sales enablement: sales plays, not another generic deck. I built that library once already, decks, case studies, objection handling, for 50+ reps, and win rates moved 30% because the materials answered the question reps actually heard in the room, not the one marketing assumed. Getting there took 30+ structured customer interviews with OEMs and distributors before I wrote a line of messaging, the same buyer-journey mapping this role asks for, and I would run that same discipline here before I touched a single asset aimed at a bank, an insurer or a tax and accounting shop.

A Financial Services buyer is risk-averse and runs a long sales cycle, and that is the shape of buyer I already build for. At Applied Materials I size a semiconductor market that lives on compliance and yield, and on the side I am building PriceKeel, a tool that gives Finance teams a pricing record their own auditors can defend. What a risk-averse buyer wants from a vendor is the same thing every time: show your work in language their own compliance team would accept.

The posting also asks for comfort using AI across research, content and analysis. I already automate my own market sizing and reporting with Claude agents at Applied Materials, which frees the hours that go into getting the messaging right instead of rebuilding the same spreadsheet every cycle.
