Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

November 5, 2026

Hiring Team, Alcatraz

Your posting asks for someone who can turn one product into a different story for security, IT, facilities and executive audiences. I already run that exact translation problem at Sensata: I owned the GTM for a new sensing product line end to end (positioning, pricing, channel, launch), wrote the positioning that lifted conversion 15% on priority launches, and built the battlecards, decks and case studies that 50 plus reps carried into the field, moving win rates 30%. Different buyer list, same job: take something technical and make it land with whoever is in the room, from an engineer to an executive.

I also already run the half of this role most product marketing teams are still figuring out: using AI tools to automate the workflow instead of rebuilding it every cycle. At Applied Materials I automate recurring go-to-market analysis with AI agents built on Claude rather than redoing the same market-sizing spreadsheet every quarter. That is not a pitch line, it is what my Monday mornings actually look like.

The piece of your posting I would want to build first is the win/loss and program-performance loop. At Sensata I tracked competitor and customer activity across EMEA and the US and fed it straight back into GTM and product roadmaps, and before that I ran 30 plus customer interviews with OEMs and distributors to pressure-test messaging before launch, not after. I would want Alcatraz's launches to run on the same discipline: know why a deal was won or lost, then feed it back into the next positioning pass and the next battlecard, instead of writing one battlecard and leaving it static while the competitive landscape moves.

Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/alcatraz.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar