

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 8, 2026

Hiring Team, PayPal

Your posting asks for someone who identifies issues in sales operations and recommends best practices that actually stick. At Sensata I built the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard that gave leadership one place to see 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target, broken out by region, product line and salesperson instead of scattered spreadsheets. I used it to trace $433M in surfaced margin gaps back to root cause and fix the underlying process, which is how that dashboard became $700K+ in recovered margin within two quarters, not just a number someone flagged and moved past.

I run that same loop end to end now as founder of PriceKeel: I own the CRM and CPQ, the forecast and pipeline reviews, and every deal approval myself, and I built the audit trail that gives Finance a documented reason behind each pricing call. Selling against legacy CPQ and deal-desk tooling means most of my week is spent partnering across Sales, Finance and Engineering to analyze where a process is actually breaking down, not just report that it is.

I have hired, managed and coached teams through that same cycle before: an 8-person account team at Pixis carrying its own P&L and revenue targets, and the marketing team I built at Plug Power, both run on the weekly and quarterly review cadence this role describes. At Sensata I also shipped sales enablement for 50+ reps that lifted win rates 30%, the kind of functional project that makes a sales team more effective without anyone adding headcount.

I like the part of revenue operations most people skip: the dashboard a sales team actually opens, and the process fix behind it instead of just another report nobody logs into. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/paypal.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar