Hiring Team, Lagrange Point International

"Building the structure, rigor and rhythm that keep a fast-scaling organization aligned" reads like my own job description right now, just for a company of one. PriceKeel is the B2B SaaS product I founded: I set up the CRM and pipeline reviews, designed the guardrail engine and audit trail that Finance and Sales leadership use to approve deals, and I am running pilots with early customers while raising the first round, all as the one person who owns the agenda end to end. That is the exact motion this role asks for: take a messy cross-functional problem, build the review and decision structure around it, and carry it to a result.

I run that same motion inside much larger organizations too. At Applied Materials I turn scattered input from Sales, Engineering and Accounts into one market view, and I run the OKR cadence behind weekly and quarterly business reviews while carrying P&L targets for the role. At Sensata I built the FY2026 pricing dashboard that tracked 1,200 opportunities against a $627M target, then used it to run the Bleeders and Leakers program that recovered $700K plus in margin in two quarters, working directly with senior executives on AP26 revenue models and site-transition strategy. That is the dashboard-and-decision-framework rigor a fast-scaling platform needs from its CEO's office.

I am also comfortable being the person in the room representing that office. At Sensata I sat close enough to the executive team to build their revenue models myself. On a pro-bono consulting engagement for Safran, I led a 5-consultant team that sized a market down to a SAM of 28 facilities, and I presented the pricing and market-entry recommendation directly to Safran's leadership. I have hired and managed teams end to end too, from an 8-person account team at Pixis to the team behind my own SwipeHire product, so the people side of this seat is not new ground either.
