Hiring Team, Hector Beverages

Your post asks for an IIT or BITS B.Tech graduate, and I did my BE at BITS Pilani, so this is one of the rare postings where the qualification bar and my own background line up exactly. What made me look past that, though, is the mandate itself: working directly with the Founder on the company's biggest bets, turning ambiguous cross-functional problems into decisions that move the business.

That is the job I already do. At Sensata I built the Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard, ranked 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target, and used it to recover $700K+ in margin in two quarters, raising distributor and channel-partner margins from 53% to 61%. Getting there meant sitting with senior executives on AP26 revenue models and site-transition strategy, the same idea-to-number ownership a founder's office needs on a new growth bet.

I bring the same discipline to my own company today. At PriceKeel I run CRM, CPQ, forecast reviews and deal approvals end to end and built a guardrail engine and audit trail from a blank page, so ambiguity is not a gap for me, it is the default starting condition of building something. At Applied Materials I automate repetitive analysis with Claude AI agents, the comfort with data and AI/ML your post asks for. I also spent two years running retail media and paid growth for D2C consumer brands at Pixis, budgets of $15K-$90K per client per month, which is closer to Paper Boat's own distribution and growth problem than most Founder's Office candidates will bring.

What I would bring to Hector Beverages is someone who has already taken fuzzy, cross-functional problems to a measured number, in both a scaling industrial business and a company I am building myself. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/hector-beverages.
