Adithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 26, 2026

Hiring Team, Verkada

Your posting asks for someone who can be the accountable owner for a piece of a several-hundred-million-dollar budget and still define the dashboard that tells leadership whether it is healthy. I built that exact artifact at Sensata: the FY2026 Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard, reconciling 1,200 pricing opportunities against a $627M target across 3 regions and 20 product lines, and surfacing $433M in margin gaps so leadership knew which ones to chase first. That same quarter I recovered $700K+ in margin by acting on what the dashboard showed, not just reporting it.

The "business partner" part of this role is not new work either. I carried P&L and revenue targets for a multi-$100M business unit at Sensata and partnered directly with senior executives on AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes. I run that same operating discipline today as founder of PriceKeel: I set up and operate the CRM and CPQ configuration myself, including forecast and pipeline reviews and deal approvals, and I built the audit trail that gives Finance an explainable record behind every pricing exception, the kind of evidence a lean strategic-finance team needs when it is partnering, not just tracking. SQL, Power BI, Tableau and Databricks are where I take that work once a spreadsheet stops being enough, and I use AI agents built on Claude at Applied Materials to cut the time spent on repetitive analysis so more of it goes to judgment calls.

One opinion I would bring to this seat: a management dashboard is only as useful as the prioritization it forces. The Bleeders and Leakers build only mattered because it told leadership which $433M to chase first, by salesperson and product line, not just that a shortfall existed. I would want to build that same forcing function into Verkada's operating metrics, wherever the Product or GTM pillar needs it most. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/verkada.

I would welcome the chance to talk through where this fits best across Verkada's finance and business-ops priorities.

Adithya Rokhith Bhaskar