Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

November 2, 2026

Hiring Team, Faire

Your posting asks a PMM to "hold the thread across multiple launches" instead of shipping one story at a time, and that is the job I had at Sensata: I owned GTM strategy, positioning through launch, for a new sensing-product line across North America and Europe, cut the jargon that did not need to be there, and turned three regional launches into one coherent narrative that moved $2M+ in first-year revenue.

You also want someone who ships "directionally right" on 70% of the information instead of waiting for certainty. I ran 30+ structured interviews with OEMs and distributors before every positioning call, not to get to 100%, but to get to a defensible read fast enough to launch on schedule, and it moved conversion 15% and CSAT 22%. When the market itself shifted under an existing product, I repositioned the messaging by tracking competitor moves across EMEA and the US rather than guessing from inside the building.

The cross-functional half of the job is where I spend the other half of my time. I built the battlecards and case studies that got 50 reps using new positioning on day one, and separately turned competitive benchmarking across 10+ players into a repricing call that moved revenue 12% and share 8%, the same thread between Product, Sales and pricing decisions your posting treats as one job, not three.

At Applied Materials today I automate my own recurring market analysis with AI agents built on Claude instead of rebuilding the same report every cycle, the same habit your posting is asking PMMs to bring to the team's AI practice rather than treat as a side experiment. Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/faire.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar