Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

October 24, 2026

Hiring Team, RudderStack

Your posting says the week can move between a positioning doc, a GTM plan, a battlecard, an enablement session and a blog post. That is the job I had at Sensata: I owned GTM end to end for a new line of sensing products (positioning, pricing, channel, launch) and drove $2M+ in first-year revenue, while keeping the competitive program current across EMEA and the US and building the sales enablement that lifted win rates 30% for 50+ reps.

You also leave the door open for someone qualifying through growth and performance marketing instead of a pure product marketing title, and I can meet you on that path too. At Pixis I delivered 3x ROAS in a month through a full-funnel rebuild (feed cleanup, smart bidding, creative, lookalikes), and at Plug Power I ran paid campaigns end to end, from targeting through attribution, cutting CPA 25%. Positioning and performance marketing have been two halves of the same job for me, not two separate resumes.

The part that made me write instead of just clicking apply is the shift to an Agentic CDP. At Applied Materials I already run AI agents built on Claude to automate the market-sizing and forecasting work that used to eat a week of every planning cycle, so the positioning stays current instead of stale. A product marketer who already works this way should be a faster fit for a company betting its roadmap on agents doing the same thing with customer data.

I would like to put the GTM, competitive program and enablement work behind RudderStack's own pivot. Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/rudderstack.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar