Hiring Team, Fivetran

Your posting asks for someone who can turn a top-down revenue number into a bottoms-up plan the field can actually run on: quotas that hold up, territories that split opportunity fairly, and a headcount model that matches ramp assumptions to the number Finance signed off on. I built almost that exact system at Sensata, where I owned a $627M pipeline target spread across 1,200 opportunities and three regions, and I know how fast a plan falls apart once Sales, Finance and People all have a different version of it.

At Sensata I built the Bleeders and Leakers Power BI dashboard that scored win rate, average dollars per win and stage distribution by salesperson and product line, the same productivity read your team needs to catch a territory going sideways before quarter end instead of after. I used that dashboard's own data to recover $700K in margin in two quarters and to raise distributor margins from 53% to 61%, and I partnered with senior stakeholders across Sales and Finance on AP26 revenue models and site-transition strategy when the plan on paper stopped matching the plan on the ground.

I run that same operating rhythm now as founder of PriceKeel: CRM, CPQ, forecast and pipeline reviews, and deal approvals, with an audit trail Finance can stand behind. SQL and Salesforce are the tools I pull data from directly rather than wait on a report for, and influencing Sales, Finance and People without owning any of them is the whole job description at a one-person company.

I would bring someone who has already built a capacity model from scratch and defended it to the people whose comp depends on it, not just maintained one that someone else designed. Proof trail at adhithyabhaskar.vercel.app/ref/fivetran.
