Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar

San Francisco Bay Area, CA | arokhith@gmail.com | +1-929-563-9974

November 12, 2026

Hiring Team, AiSteth

Your posting describes a role built around one person's operating rhythm: priorities, calendar, decisions, and the follow-through that turns them into execution. I run that exact rhythm for my own company today. I founded PriceKeel, and I built its CRM, CPQ, forecast and pipeline reviews from zero, while also preparing the investor updates and board-ready materials our first fundraising round depends on.

The strategic-project half of the role is where I have a number to show you. At Sensata I turned a vague margin mandate into the Bleeders and Leakers program: 1,200 opportunities ranked against a $627M target, closed into $700K+ recovered in two quarters by negotiating directly on competitive gaps and customer willingness to pay. I also shaped AP26 revenue models and multimillion-dollar customer quotes alongside senior executives, the same executive-facing judgment a board pack or investor update needs.

Cross-functional coordination across groups that do not report to each other is a habit, not a stretch, for me. At Applied Materials I turn competing input from Sales, Engineering and Accounts into one view leadership can act on, and I led a 5-consultant team through a market-entry study presented directly to a client's leadership. I carry P&L targets and run the OKR and board-deck cadence at every seat I have held.

I would welcome the chance to talk through how I would run the first 30 days of AiSteth's operating rhythm. Proof trail at adhi-product-ai.vercel.app/ref/aisteth.

Adhithya Rokhith Bhaskar