Hiring Team, TestRail

Your posting asks one person to own pipeline generation and conversion performance end to end: strategy, campaign roadmap, and the experimentation that proves which lever moved the number. At Plug Power I ran that loop on $100K/month paid budgets across multiple business units, cutting CPA 25% through smart-bidding account structures and tying 15+ A/B tests directly to MQL quality and stage-1 pipeline, not just click volume.

The qualified-lead and pipeline KPIs you list are the ones I've been held to before. At Sensata I owned GTM for a new product line across North America and Europe and ran digital and paid launch campaigns that generated 35% more qualified leads, then built the sales enablement that helped 50+ reps close at a 30% higher win rate. That's the cross-functional part of this role: growth doesn't stop at a lead, it has to land somewhere Sales can use it.

Budget management and reporting is the part people underrate until it slips. I built and automated the lead-flow and closed-loop reporting stack at Plug Power (WordPress, Pardot, Salesforce, GTM) that halved cost per lead, and at Pixis I managed an 8-client, $15K-$90K-per-month portfolio with my own P&L, so I know what it costs to run growth as a budget owner, not just a campaign operator. I also automate my own pipeline and campaign reporting with AI agents built on Claude at Applied Materials, which is the habit that keeps a brand-level growth seat from losing a week to manual QA every reporting cycle.
